EcoHome Magazine Announces Nominees for 2010 Hanley Award for Vision and Leadership in Sustainable Housing

Washington, D.C. (June 7, 2010)—Hanley Wood LLC and EcoHome magazine, in partnership with The Hanley Foundation, announce the official nominees for The 2010 Hanley Award for Vision and Leadership in Sustainable Housing. The award honors individuals who have made extraordinary, lasting, and far-reaching contributions to the advancement of sustainable housing in the United States. The award recipient will receive $50,000—the largest award in the industry recognizing contributions to environmental building. Last year’s recipient was Edward Mazria, founder of the non-profit Architecture 2030. This year’s award will be presented at the USGBC Hanley Award Dinner, Nov. 17, during the Greenbuild International Conference and Expo in Chicago.

“This year’s nominees are at the roots of green building, sustainable housing, and community development,” says EcoHome editor in chief Rick Schwolsky, “and serve to enrich and deepen the significance of The Hanley Award.”

Twelve national industry leaders were named as candidates by a diverse nomination committee, based on their deep, long-standing, and influential commitments to sustainability, and significant and lasting contributions to the widespread implementation of environmental building concepts, techniques, and innovations in advancing sustainable housing in the United States. The 2010 nominees include pioneering home builders, architects, developers, researchers, building scientists, policy advisers, non-profit and affordable housing innovators, educators, and renowned green building authors.
